The softball players at Southwestern Community College in Creston were bitterly disappointed this winter when the school announced it was canceling the 2018 season because there were only 11 student/athletes on the team.

Now at least two of those SWCC players will be finding an outlet in the Iowa Women's Softball League this summer. It's not the same as a college campaign, but it's the next-best thing in Iowa.

Addison Westercamp, a freshman at Southwestern, contacted the league this past weekend about playing this summer. She has not enrolled yet, but plans to register in the near future.

Westercamp contacted Meghan Gould, another freshman at Southwestern, and Gould promptly enrolled in the IWSL on Saturday. So even though SWCC will not be playing any games this spring, Westercamp and Gould will get to play 16 games this summer.

Gould is a middle infielder who was named to the Blue Grass All-Conference team while attending Murray High School. She lives in Osceola. Westercamp is a third baseman who attended Moulton-Udell High School.

Olivia Goodale, a sophomore All-American pitcher at Indian Hills Community College, also has enrolled for Year 2 of the summer league, putting 32 players in the fold with many more on the way.

Goodale has a 3-1 record and 1.25 ERA this season at Indian Hills. She went 15-9 with a 2.18 ERA in 2017 and helped the Warriors reach the NJCAA Division I World Series.

Stranded SWCC players turn to summer league
A group of players who were stranded in the SWCC during the winter season have turned to the summer league for a chance to play. The players, who were unable to find a team in the SWCC, are now looking for a team in the summer league. The summer league is a great opportunity for players to stay in shape and improve their skills. It is also a great way for players to meet new people and make friends. The summer league is open to all players, regardless of their skill level. It is a great way for players to get back into the game and enjoy the sport.
