All of the Class 4A football teams in the Metro area refused to play Xavier when the Saints dropped to Class 3A this year, so the Saints had to get creative and find some willing partners.

They succeeded beyond anyone's wildest imagination.

Xavier will host Iowa City Regina Friday night at Saints Field in an intriguing showdown of state powers.

The Saints reached the Class 4A finals in 2012 and 2013 before the advent of district play in Eastern Iowa allowed them to drop safely into their proper enrollment bracket in Class 3A. The Regals, meanwhile, are the premier program in Class 1A and have won four straight state titles under Coach Marv Cook.

Regina saw its 56-game winning streak come to an end against Solon - a Class 3A club - in the season opener this year, but the Regals have won six straight games since then and are averaging 43.4 points per game.

Cook, a former University of Iowa star and NFL all-pro tight end, was not afraid to play Xavier this season, even though at the time it was scheduled it looked like Regina might be putting its winning streak in serious jeopardy. Solon took care of the streak, 29-28, and now Regina will be facing a team that beat Solon earlier this year.

The stands at Saints Field figure to be crowded for this game. So will the pressbox, with three different radio stations all broadcasting the game (KMRY, KGYM and KCJJ).

Drew Cook, the coach's son, has passed for 1,123 yards and 14 touchdowns this season while completing 65.5 percent of his passes. Incredibly, he has not thrown an interception all year. Cook will be following his father's footsteps and enrolling at Iowa to play football.

Nick Phillips has caught 26 passes for 285 yards and six TDs for Regina. Jake Brinkman has rushed for 585 yards and seven touchdowns.

Jay Kortemeyer leads Xavier with 771 yards on the ground. Bryce Schulte has passed for 457 yards and four TDs. Schulte also has run for 10 touchdowns. Nick Stark has caught 12 passes for 192 yards. Dylan Eller has five interceptions.
